REAFFIRMED MISSION STATEMENT

American education assumes a link between the truth of an idea and the good it promotes for individuals and society. An educated person can be expected to be not only knowledgeable and more financially secure, but also a better citizen, among whose virtues are tolerance, judgment and belief in freedom for self and others. These values develop in an atmosphere of open inquiry and pursuit of truth. Therefore, as the new university seeks to support education, social and economic growth, and civic and cultural awareness in southwestern Indiana, it will be devoted primarily to preparing students to live wisely.

The University of Southern Indiana is a broad-based institution offering programs of instruction, research, and service. A liberal arts and science curriculum serves as the foundation of knowledge for all programs and complements undergraduate programs leading to careers in business, engineering technology, government, health professions, education, and cognate fields. Selected master's degrees will be offered, primarily in professional and technical studies. As a public institution, the University of Southern Indiana counsels and assists both business and industry and social, educational, governmental, and health agencies as they strive to achieve higher levels of efficiency and improved services.

The campus was established in 1965 in response to an expressed need for public higher education in southwestern Indiana, a region lacking public higher education until that time. Community leaders have supported and interacted with the University in providing a solid base for its present success and future growth. The University is expected to grow moderately in years ahead.

A board of nine trustees, appointed by the Governor, governs the University. This board must include one member who is an alumnus of the University, one member who is a student, and one member who is a resident of Vanderburgh County. Trustee terms are four years, except the student term, which is two years. The board has powers and duties common to other public postsecondary institutions in the State of Indiana.

The University's constituencies are primarily regional with statewide responsibilities emerging, depending on program, activity, or need. The student body is primarily commuter. A major goal of the institution is to increase the post-secondary educational participation of young people and adults in southern Indiana. To achieve this, programs and services for part-time and commuting students will be given priority. The University is increasing its attention to integrating older students (i.e., age twenty-five and older) into its programs, is developing partnerships with high schools, and is seeking to expand educational opportunities for individuals in the workplace, including off-campus instruction sites and alternative methods of program delivery. The University strives to be an institution which students choose for the strength of its academic programs and the quality of its student life.

Excellence in teaching will continue to receive highest priority in recruiting faculty. As an institution emphasizing teaching, the University requires dedicated, well-trained faculty. Since full-time faculty are the core of the university and perform major instructional responsibilities, the University seeks to reduce the present heavy reliance on part-time and adjunct faculty, while maintaining flexibility in staffing. Instructional excellence will be complemented by service to the region and the state, by faculty research, and continuous scholarly and creative activity within the University community.

A major emphasis of the University of Southern Indiana shall continue to be delivery of credit programs. For the near term, the primary curricular offerings will include liberal arts, pre-professional, professional, technical and occupational programs at both associate and baccalaureate levels. Moreover, since need for graduate-level programs in fields such as commerce, education, and the health professions has been documented, the University will add master's programs in these areas, independently or, whenever possible, in partnership with other institutions. Evansville serves as the center of a predominantly rural region dotted with small population centers. Increased educational access for adults will require innovative instructional delivery systems. These include expanded participation in the Indiana Higher Education Telecommunications Systems network.

The University serves approximately 5,000 persons annually through comprehensive noncredit programs of short duration—including workshops, conferences, seminars, and instructional courses. Noncredit programs will increase as the University continues to address economic, social, and cultural needs in the area.

The University developed through a working relationship with Indiana State University. It also cooperates with Ball State University, Indiana University, Purdue University, Vincennes University, Indiana Vocational Technical College, University of Evansville, four regional hospitals, and the local library consortium. The University of Southern Indiana will explore additional partnership arrangements for cooperative services with appropriate public and private institutions.

The University will continue to participate with business, industry, and social and governmental agencies in the area. The University expects to create a community resources development institute in the eleven-county service region of southwestern Indiana. The variety of research and development activities initially may include problems and concerns related to small business development, labor-management relations, tourism and recreation, health-care delivery, gerontology, energy development (with special attention to coal and oil), and environmental-quality analysis. Campus facilities will continue to be shared with and used widely by community groups and those from the private sector for meetings, programs, services, and instruction.

The University has a special relationship with the historic town of New Harmony, a community with a rich intellectual and cultural heritage. The University expects this bond will strengthen as the partnership between Historic New Harmony, Inc. and the University develops. The auxiliary nature of the partnership will remain.

The University is accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools. Programs in education, engineering technology, and the health professions are accredited by the appropriate professional and state agencies.

The University of Southern Indiana participates in Division II intercollegiate athletics and is a member of the Great Lakes Valley Conference. The intercollegiate athletics program will be operated to the greatest extent possible as an auxiliary enterprise.

The University will admit persons graduated from commissioned high schools in Indiana and other states, or persons holding a GED. Applicants with less than a "C" average in the combined units of English, mathematics, science, and social studies may enter conditionally. Academic progress and graduation standards are based on good practices, in accord with other Indiana institutions of higher education.

The University provides a comprehensive range of support services for students. These include health services, counseling, placement, athletics (intramural and intercollegiate), financial aid, student activities, child care and academic skills. The University extends special efforts to the disadvantaged, who need more than normal assistance to meet their educational goals.
