

An introduction to USI's Degree Evaluation

What is DARS? What is a Degree Evaluation?

The Degree Audit Reporting System (DARS) is a computer program that was implemented to assist in the advising function. A degree evaluation (also called degree audit) outlines a student's specific degree requirements, tracks their progress toward the fulfillment of those requirements, and is used to verify graduation.

How do I read the Degree Audit?

The screenshot shows a degree audit report with several sections. Annotations on the left explain the symbols used: red up and down arrows for navigation, NO or minus signs for unsatisfied categories, plus signs for acceptable courses, and IP for in-progress courses. Annotations on the right explain the course line format, which includes the term, course name, course ID, credit hours, and final grade. A note at the bottom right explains that special notations like IPRP indicate a repeat course.

Red up and down arrows allow easy navigation to/from the top of the page

Unsatisfied categories are indicated with a NO or a minus sign.

Acceptable courses from which to select are listed in red

Categories that have been satisfied with successfully graded courses are indicated with a plus sign or an OK

Categories indicated with an IP will be satisfied upon the successful completion of any "in progress" courses (those yet to be graded)

USI classes are included, as well as an evaluation of any transfer coursework (including the original institution & course ID)

Each course line lists the term the course was taken (Spring 2007), the course ID (PED 138), credit hours (1.0) and final grade (A)

Special notations may appear to the right of a grade (refer to the legend at the end of the degree evaluation for possible codes). For example, an RP indicates the course is a repeat

Who can take advantage of the Degree Audit?

Degree-seeking undergraduates who began at USI in summer 1995 or later are eligible to run/view a degree evaluation. Academic advisors can also access their advisee's degree evaluation and can recommend the most appropriate courses.

When should the Degree Audit be reviewed?

- as part of any academic advising session
- before/after registering for classes
- after any schedule revision (add/drop)
- at the end of the semester when grades are official
- if considering changing programs (new major/degree type)
- when initiating a Formal Application for Graduation or to confirm completion of degree requirements

Where can I access the Degree Evaluation? Students and faculty can run and view a degree audit online through myUSI (my.usi.edu). After logging in with their username and password, students will:

- 1) click the Self Service icon, 2) select Student, 3) select Student Records and 4) choose Degree Evaluation.

Click A) Submit an Audit to run a new degree evaluation, or Click B) View Submitted Audits to review any reports you've run during the last 7 days

DARS - Degree Audit Reporting System

Click Run Audit to run an audit against your latest academic degree program. An evaluation of any transfer credits will be included within the audit. If you'd like to see how your coursework would apply toward a different program, run a "What-if" analysis. Degree audits are available for degree-seeking undergraduates who first began at USI in the summer of 1995 or later.

How do I submit a Degree Evaluation (run an audit)?

A degree audit can either be run 1) for the student's currently declared major/program (click the "Run Audit" button), or 2) as a "what-if" audit for another major the student might be interested in (click the "What-If?" button).

What-If?

If running a 'what-if' report, you'll progress through a series of drop-down lists to select the desired program. The catalog indicates the semester the student began/will begin the program (unless granted a waiver by the chair of the department of the new major, students must meet the program requirements in effect at the time the new major is declared).
